

BRYAN SCHOOL of Business and Economics

About the Bryan School

The Bryan School of Business and Economics helps students develop the knowledge and experience to become exceptional problem solvers that organizations and communities need. Our students and alumni carry forward their Bryan School experience to make meaningful contributions where they work, live, and lead.

Our History

The Joseph M. Bryan School of Business and Economics at UNCG was established in 1969, but its origins date back to the opening of the University in 1892. Then, the Commercial Department was one of the three original departments. When action was taken to establish the School, it consisted of two departments: the Department of Economics and Business Administration, which dated back to 1963, and the Department of Business Education and Secretarial Administration, which was established in 1940.

Among the Top 1%

of business schools in the world with dual accreditation in business and accounting from AACSB, the longest-standing and most recognized business program accreditation.
